

“The most transformative technology for economic development of our time,” says Columbia University Professor of Economics Jeff Sachs in reference to the rise in mobile and internet technology. Experts predict the mobile web will increase to be larger than desktop internet use by the year 2015. To help your community capitalize on this important trend, Atlas is offering a special promotion on our industry leading mobile websites.

By launching an Atlas Mobile Site your community will be able to provide essential information, allowing companies and prospects in your area to learn more about your community, connect with your organization, browse the latest news and search available properties from your GIS system, all from their mobile devices. Compatible devices include IEMobile®, Windows CE®, BlackBerry®, iPhone®, Android®, Pre (Palm)® and webOS®.

Atlas Mobile Sites will include the following features:

- A link to view the full website
- Site map in the footer available on all pages except the homepage
- Your logo and custom color palette
- A custom community map
- Important content for mobile users including:
 - Community overview
 - Latest news
 - Contact information for your organization
- An automatic re-direct for users accessing your site from a mobile device (if Atlas built your full website we will install the code; if Atlas did not build your full website, the original vendor will need to implement this).
- Searchable property database

Click to see live Mobile Site: m.southcentralky.com